National Sexual Violence Resource Center Recognizes Leaders in Sexual Violence Prevention With 2024 Visionary Voice Awards

Honorees include advocates, journalists, survivors, lawmakers, and more

HARRISBURG, PA – The National Sexual Violence Resource Center (NSVRC) announced today 28 recipients of its 2024 Visionary Voice Awards. These honorees represent a wide range of disciplines from across the country and were selected for their outstanding work toward preventing sexual abuse, assault, and harassment.

This year’s recipients include Rachel de Leon, an Emmy-winning reporter and producer whose Netflix documentary Victim/Suspect explores how survivors report to police only to be charged with false reporting; Deputy Attorney General of Rhode Island Adi Goldstein, a long-time champion of survivors of sexual and domestic violence as well as human trafficking; Chris Nakamoto, an investigative journalist whose reporting on the gross inequities for sexual assault survivors throughout Louisiana has educated the public and inspired positive change; Maine State Representative Nina Milliken, a state representative who made Maine the second state to create legal remedies for victims of non-consensual removal of or tampering with a condom, known as “stealthing”; Ohio State Senator Nickie J. Antonio, a dedicated advocate for women’s and LGBTQIA+ rights; Assistant Attorney General of Guam Christine Tenorio, who serves as the sole sex crimes prosecutor handling 100 criminal sexual assault cases at trial/appellate levels and consistently advocates for legal reforms to better benefit survivors within the criminal justice system; and Ohio State Representative Jessica E. Miranda, a representative whose history as a child abuse survivor has fueled her fight to combat sexual violence, which can be seen in her sponsorship of several bills which range from expanding the statute of limitations for Boy Scout survivors to ending the spousal rape loophole in Ohio.
“We are thrilled to honor all of these winners, who approach this issue from all angles and all walks of life to benefit survivors,” said Yolanda Edrington, CEO of Respect Together, the organization of which NSVRC is a primary division. “Each of these recipients is a role model and an example of the many ways we can all come together to create safe, respectful and caring environments for us all. We thank them for all that they do today and every day.”

The Visionary Voice Awards are presented annually by NSVRC, the leading nonprofit in providing information and tools to prevent and respond to sexual violence, in conjunction with Sexual Assault Awareness Month (SAAM). SAAM is a national campaign held each April to raise awareness about preventing sexual violence. This year’s SAAM theme, “Building Connected Communities,” focuses on the crucial role of inclusive, equitable, and connected communities in preventing sexual abuse, assault, and harassment.
